COOKING RECIPE SET UP

When reading or writing a recipe we won't use the vs command form. We use the vs at times when we are present with the person and giving them a direct command. Instead, we use partial sentences with sequential H-grade.

Okcvnwv hakkuce hvmken vpahyet.

Add one tablespoon of salt.

Vpahyet

| Root word (Vpvyetv) | H-grade Sequential Piece | Partial Sentence Ending |

In our recipes they are set up in a sequential order. So, basically this is not present tense, past tense nor is it future tense. Rather just an instructional statement, made by using H grade.

Owv sesketv facken akcahnet. Pour in a full cup of water.	Akcahnet Sequential Order	Akcvnvs Present Tense Command
Naklanuce okkohset. Wash the vegetables.	Okkohset Sequential Order	Okkosvs Present Tense Command
Vhv cerehe kvlvhfet. Peel the potatoes.	Kvlvhfet Sequential Order	Kvlvfvs Present Tense Command
Hvse vkerkv encvpke hvmken hotohpet. Bake for one hour.	Hotohpet Sequential Order	Hotopvs Present Tense Command
Cvto hiye svpihket. Put it in the oven.	Svpihket Sequential Order	Svpikvs Present Tense Command